The successful candidate will be primarily responsible for:

- Sales and support of precision technology related hardware and services to our customer base.
- Assist the Product Specialist as necessary with customer support for CNH precision data to the customer's data platform and their data platform back to CNH product.
- Selling value added data services
- Advise customers on machine connectivity, and how data can be extracted to gain operational efficiencies as well as help make management decisions.
- Provide support to Parts and service teams with information on latest advancements in technology.

Preference will be given to the individual that possesses:

- Strong knowledge of GPS and precision farming.
- Knowledge of data collection practices an asset.
- Strong communication and interpersonal skills with customers and individuals at all levels of the organization.
- Strong problem-solving skills.
- Sales skills would be an asset.
- Expertise with computer systems and software, including MS office and internet-based applications.
- Manufacture Precision Technology training/certificate, on the job training or similar Agriculture Technology education.
- Previous experience in an agricultural equipment dealership preferred.
